

Bringing back a bit of Ottertail history...

The Williams Company Store recently opened in Ottertail. The building has held a general store since the early 1900s. New owner Pam Williams renovated the building, bringing back the old style of the store.

the store, where people walk in and are comfortable."

A delight for her was the friendliness and helpfulness of so many of the local residents. "I met some dedicated people who helped tremendously," explained Williams. Don and Lana Trippel are among two of her new-found friends who have aided her efforts.

When choosing products for her store, Williams goes with her "gut feeling. I watched good retailers

the store, where people walk in and are comfortable."

A delight for her was the friendliness and helpfulness of so many of the local residents. "I met some dedicated people who helped tremendously," explained Williams. Don and Lana Trippel are among two of her new-found friends who have aided her efforts.

When choosing products for her store, Williams goes with her "gut feeling. I watched good retailers

for years in the cities and I know what they do. That part of the job is not hard for me."

Williams enjoys the good mix of product lines available in the store. She carries a large section of bath and body lines, which include everything from luxuriously soft robes to aromatherapy wraps to scented bath gels and lotions to rubber duckies.

She has included plenty of home decor items in her collection of

for years in the cities and I know what they do. That part of the job is not hard for me."

Williams enjoys the good mix of product lines available in the store. She carries a large section of bath and body lines, which include everything from luxuriously soft robes to aromatherapy wraps to scented bath gels and lotions to rubber duckies.

She has included plenty of home decor items in her collection of goods as well. Unique items such as aromatherapeutic household cleaners are displayed with flair next to shelves of Egyptian cotton linens. Crystal, artwork, lamps, candles, rugs, and books are nestled along the rows of original general store shelving that Williams preserved. Jewelry, magnets and cards are all

Occupying a large section of the

goods as well. Unique items such as aromatherapeutic household cleaners are displayed with flair next to shelves of Egyptian cotton linens. Crystal, artwork, lamps, candles, rugs, and books are nestled along the rows of original general store shelving that Williams preserved. Jewelry, magnets and cards are all

Occupying a large section of the